

QOMS Covid-19 OMFS Trauma Service Evaluation

Understanding how Covid-19 is changing the care of facial trauma and dental infection patients

The Oral and Maxillofacial Surgery (OMFS) Department in this hospital is participating in a service evaluation to assess whether your treatment is being affected by the Covid-19 crisis.

If you present to an OMFS department with a facial trauma, information about you (age and gender), your treatment and its results will be collected.

If you want further information, your treating team in this Department can give you an information leaflet and answer your questions.

Further information about this project is available at (QOMS webpage)
